Sections Discussed: III.1.c/d/e, III.5.b, III.6

Charlie Coleman

1. No, he should not have accepted a job without notifying his boss.
2. Yes, he did not entice Engineer A with false information
3. Yes, as long as he told his employer when he was offered the job and decided to take it.
4. No, this could be seen as false or at least incomplete information
5. No, this could be seen as an attempt to keep an employee through questionable methods, addressed in III.6
6. Yes, as Engineer A had not informed his employer of his future position at ACE and ACE could not be aware of that
7. No, employment should only be offered when it is guaranteed. Otherwise it could be construed as lying.
